Grade 6 Up-The Brownies' Book was a literary magazine for African American children and their parents, published from January, 1920 through December, 1921 by W. E. B. DuBois. It was filled with poetry, prose, biographies, and art and letters from readers. Its intention was to give the "Children of the Sun" a better sense of their own self-worth and, as one reader put it, "race love and race pride." "These story classics still stand up well, still retain the marvelously subversive nature of the underdog's small but soul-satisfying revenges. All the material can be enjoyed by young children, and will intrigue adults by recapturing a little piece of early Harlem renaissance history."-- Washington Post Book World.
