Mediterranean Cooking by Paula Wolfert was the first cook book that centered on Mediterranean cooking with accurate recipes. It is a great reference for that something you need for Moroccan, Provence, Italian, Greek, Lebanese and Israeli cooking. During 1977 I bet most people in America had no idea of what tabbouleh, baba ghanoush and tahini was. This cook book is a classic and a good starting point for this cuisine. Since it is from the seventy's it does not have any pretty pictures but is packed with basic recipes. One warning is necessary about the publisher's blurb that this second (1994) edition contains '75 new recipes'. In the introduction, Ms. Wolfert herself says that this has been more of a trade of 75 healthier, less fatty recipes for 60 older recipes.
