Possessiveness: Coming from deep psychological insecurity and interpersonal distrust, a person may compensate for their fears of abandonment by regarding the "loved one" as a possession. 6. Romantic Idealism: In western culture it is not unusual for a person to be in-love-with-the-idea-of-love. This feeling is triggered by a cognitive abstraction that seeks and finds a flesh-and-blood object. True love is a giving thing. Remember John 3:16, the Good Samaritan story, and John 15:13: "Greater love has no one than this: to lay down one's life for one's friends." Love can even give another the space they need and even can let go of the other if that is what the other really wants. Desire: Love Stories in Western Culture. Article. Oct 1996. Our aim is to build knowledge about how and where print editions of HM&B novels circulate after their publication, and to consider how this relates to developments in digital and online literary culture. We have selected 50 novels by Australian authors published between 1996 and 2016, and from 1 December 2016 we're asking social media users to help us find them.
