* Countries with a Common Law tradition, strong protection of shareholder rights, good accounting regulations, low levels of corruption, and no explicit deposit insurance tend to be more market-based. There are some countries that show-up as well-developed by all measures (Australia, Great Britain). Similarly, the United States and the Philippines are both market-based systems, but the markets in the Philippines are not as effective at providing financial services.

Banks play a central role in the Australian financial system, holding the majority of financial system assets. In addition to traditional retail deposit-taking and lending activities, banks are involved in almost all other facets of financial intermediation, including business banking, trading in financial markets, stockbroking, insurance and funds management.
