PUBLICATIONS IN PROGRESS

Learning to Globalize China: Development Paradigm Change and the Opening of China's Coastal and Interior Economies (planned MS submission, spring 2011)

- This second volume on China's foreign economic strategies analyzes the debates between Chinese elites concerning foreign trade policy, and how the elites learned from the strengths and weaknesses of implemented policies. The volume uses internal speeches, policies and studies produced by the state and the Chinese Communist Party to understand how the learning process also was influenced by the interaction between the opinion groups and by international forces, bureaucratic "and regional behavior. Such learning resulted in China's amazing transformation into a global economic power and crucial player in the World Trade Organization.
