The history of football goes back almost as far as that of cricket. Here is a quotation from a set of rules: do you recognize the game?
"The players form two sides, and the game is started by throwing the ball into the air from a half-way line separating the teams. As soon as the ball is in the air, the players make a dash for it, the aim being to run with the ball and touch it to the ground upon a line behind the opponents." Rugby Union, you think?
